PENSACOLA, FLORIDA, TUESDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 12, 1909.

State Pure Food Law to Be Strictly Enforced.

A short paragraph in The Lake City Index catches The Journal's eye, because it speaks of a most important matter. "A form of procedure," declares that newspaper, "has been agreed on at Tallahassee, between the proper officials, as to the proper enforcement of the pure food law, and the new statute, everyone having been put on notice, will be strictly enforced in the future."

No doubt Editor Appleyard speaks ex cathedra and it is good news he gives the people of Florida. If there is one thing in the world which should be as pure and above suspicion as Caesar's wife and also completely retain its due proportion of life sustaining power it is the food that goes to the nourishment of the people—yes, of all animals. About this there can be no question, for human health, happiness and activity—three virtues which, when owned, make man capable, active and full of good achievement—are more dependent upon what and how much he eats than upon any other material cause.

It is certain that Adrian Jordan, the state pure food inspector, may be relied on to be conscientious in the performance of his duties. He will be true to the trust reposed in him and will execute his duty impartially and capably. To know that he will be backed by other state authorities is a strong reassurance. It is a substantial guaranty that Floridians may eat the things offered for sale with a feeling of unworried conviction that they contain no deleterious substance and are up to their proper standard of wholesomeness and food value.

The question of preservatives used on perishable foods is now being widely agitated from a national standpoint. There is wide difference of opinion, for instance, as to whether benzoate of soda may safely be used. Everyone knows it received official sanction from Washington, but no one can be without a certain degree of doubt concerning the effect of this chemical on the health when it has been condemned by many who claim to know what they are talking about.

So Inspector Jordan, in passing upon this and other like questions will be called upon to make close investigation of facts; of the experiments which have been conducted at Washington and the opinions of chemists. He will have his hands full, without doubt; but it is safe to say he will not shirk his duty. A great responsibility rests upon his shoulders—neither more nor less than the health of the people of the state. For no people can possibly enjoy the best of health who eat adulterated, doctored, unwholesome or improperly prepared foods.

BOOST, BOOM, BUILD—THAT'S ALL.

The Canning Industry Again to the Front.

At the possible cost of becoming tiresome to many of its readers, The Journal again urges that attention be given the matter of establishing canneries. It has always claimed that if properly managed these plants would be certain to yield a great profit in this section and in all parts of the state where fruits and vegetables grow luxuriantly throughout nearly the entire year. Its conclusion receives fresh substantiation every day.

We note that a cannery is about to be established at Montgomery, Alabama. If it is thought that it will pay there, how much more certain would be its success in Pensacola. But, apart from large canning establishments, small plants located on individual farms have been found to be money makers reaping a profit from produce which becomes a glut on an overstocked truck and fruit market and is now generally thrown away. Through the esteemed Jacksonville Fruit and Produce News we learn of the success of one farmer who gives his experience and some valuable advice in the columns of The Southern Farm Gazette. He says:

We have owned a cannery about five years and have had success canning all kinds of fruits and berries that we had, and beans, peas (field and garden), okra, beets and tomatoes. The work is easily done, can be done partly by children and after the crops are mostly laid by.

When canning be careful to fill the cans full and uniformly. Tomatoes are the principal thing we can for market. In canning okra use any water as a filler. Just use good tomatoes, fill the can, cap and process forty minutes, and the tomatoes will make juice enough to fill the can. Anyone who will follow the directions sent with the canner need not be afraid to try canning. We have had our canned goods on the market for one year and don't dread any competition of the large factories, for when hand-packed goods are once used they are always sought. We use No. 2 cans, and they can be used more than once by melting the solder or cutting the caps and not cutting the cans. Cans are so cheap this year it will hardly pay to bother with saving old cans.

We expect to can from 6,000 to 7,000 cans this year, and find that it pays much better than working so much to make cotton. If anyone expects to market his canned goods he will want nice labels, which cost $1.50 per 1,000.

Together with The News we lament the terrible annual destruction of good material which takes place in Florida, and the loss of revenue which it causes. There is no good reason why this should continue. The way to obviate it has been plainly and persistently pointed out. The expense of a small canning plant, such as is described in the Southern Farm Gazette is not large. It would probably more than pay for itself in one season; while it is impossible to believe that capital invested in a large plant in any city in Florida would fail to realize a large profit.

The Journal earnestly hopes the matter will be given careful thought, and that thought will lead to activity. It is a shame that the state and the people of the state should waste such a large proportion of the abundant yield of the fruits of the earth rendered by a soil and climate more propitious than can be found in other lands and through that waste lose a harvest of gold which otherwise would flow into their coffers.

BOOST, BOOM, BUILD—THAT'S ALL.

After long and valuable service Walter W. Thompson has laid down his pen as editor of The Key West Citizen, to be succeeded by Marcy B. Darnall. Mr. Thompson has The Journal's very best wishes for success in the new and important line of work which he has undertaken, but, at the same time, it feels assured that he could have no successor more capable both by intimate acquaintance with the Citizen and because of natural ability than Mr. Darnall.

At last he is up against it. Two negroes insist on having seats at the Taft banquet in Pasadena, California, so says a dispatch from that city, the sable brethren being backed by the Afro-American league. 'Tis a stunning predicament, just on the eve of the president's invasion of the South. Enough to stump a greater harmonizer—even old Pythagoras himself.

Another "wet" or "dry" election has been called in Dade county for November 6th, which will give the Miami papers and their readers a month's real excitement.

VOX POPULI.

JUDGE REEVES MAKES A PROPOSITION TO MR. BLOUNT

Pensacola, Fla., Oct. 11, 1909.

Editor Pensacola Journal:
In your issue of the 10th inst. I notice a clipping from the Milligan Sun as follows:

"With two candidates in the field West Florida has absolutely no chance whatever of winning the United States senatorship in the coming campaign. The friends of Messrs. Blount and Reeves ought to bring sufficient force to bear to cause one of them to come down. With one of them out of the way West Florida would have an easy task of winning the senator."

Other things being equal, I believe that West Florida is entitled to the United States senator to be nominated in the approaching primary. The two United States senators are now from Jacksonville; Governors Fleming and Broward were both from this same city; Governors Mitchell and Jennings and the present governor were chosen from South Florida; the last president of the senate was from South Florida, and the last speaker of the house of representatives was from Jacksonville; the present congressman for the Third Congressional District is from the extreme eastern portion of the district as was his predecessor.

There is not a single cabinet officer from West Florida—a thickly populated section of the state with large and varied business interests and containing several seaports, including the best harbor in the South and the largest lumber and timber port in the world. Therefore, in all reason and justice, if the views, character and ability of West Florida's candidate are such as to command the confidence and respect of the voters of the state, he should succeed.

It is but natural to suppose that those inclined to admit the justice of West Florida's claim, but who are unacquainted with her candidates, would be guided somewhat by the relative numerical strength of these candidates in their own section among the people who know them most intimately, rather than entirely by hasty judgments formed upon short acquaintance during a heated campaign.

I am so strongly convinced that there is a fair chance of success, even under present conditions, that I am willing to stake my time and energies upon the effort. I feel, however, that West Florida should have the opportunity of presenting her choice untrammelled. In order that she may do so, I will agree to bear one half of the expense, (assuming that the whole expense would not exceed $3000.00, and I regard this as ample) of a preliminary primary to be held in West Florida, that is, in all counties west of the Chattahoochee

The Boldest Offer and Claim Ever Made in This City.

Yes, he is coming. Advice reached here that Gray and Quaker will arrive here next Thursday. Headquarters will be at Hannah Brothers' drug store, No. 17 South Palafox street. Gray will remain a limited time, during which he will prove what Quaker will do. Here is how he will prove it:

Certainly very bold claims are made for the wonderful Quaker, one of which is that Quaker Herb Extract will remove tape worms, quickly and surely, without dieting, sickness or danger. Now, to prove this claim Gray asks any person who may be afflicted with a tape worm to call at Hannah Bros. drug store, No. 17 South Palafox street, next Thursday. He will furnish a bottle of Quaker Herb Extract absolutely free, just to prove that this wonderful remedy will expel tape worms in a few hours. Now, this is a fair, open, honest proposition, and the more people who call to take advantage of it, the better Gray will be pleased.

Here is certainly a chance to force him to prove the powers of Quaker Herb Extract as soon as he reaches Pensacola. It costs nothing to talk to Gray, and he has arranged to remain at the Hannah Brothers' drug store daily, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., where he will cheerfully answer all questions pertaining to the Quaker Herb remedies, now almost universally acknowledged as the most wonderful remedies on earth for sufferers of rheumatism, catarrh, kidney, liver, stomach or blood troubles. Remember, any person having a tape worm can obtain the Quaker Herb Extract free next Thursday. Gray makes this offer solely to get some quick local testimonials, and to prove that Quaker Herb Extract actually does all that is claimed for it.

river, for the purpose of determining West Florida's choice as between her two candidates.

This primary should be participated in by all electors qualified to vote in the last primary. If I should fail to receive a majority of the votes cast I would retire, the other candidate to retire should he fail to receive a majority, or if it is preferred in this preliminary primary to take a vote upon all the candidates in the field I am willing that this should be done, and if I do not lead the other West Florida candidate, then I would retire. I would agree, if desirable, that neither of us should canvass any part of the field, or if preferred, that each of us be at liberty to make such canvass as he sees fit.

This is not impracticable, there is ample time and it would afford an excellent opportunity to other portions of the state to judge of the relative strength in West Florida of each of her candidates. As against this it may be urged that the whole state should have an opportunity of determining this question and that West Florida should not be permitted to eliminate a candidate, but it seems to be conceded that for a West Florida man to succeed he must have the support of his own section, and there are those who seem to deplore the fact that there are two candidates, believing that both will jeopardize

Packey McFarland Tells How He Keeps Strong

How You Can Do the Same.
Packey McFarland, the famous pugilist, is a specimen of a perfect physical condition. Why he is different from another man of his weight and build is best told in his own words in a letter written to him from San Francisco, Cal., dated April 14, 1908: "While training I at times became fatigued and find myself using Make-Man Tablets, as I found them, from personal use, the best tonic I have ever used." Make-Man Tablets are the greatest strength builders ever placed on the market. They replenish the blood with rich, red blood corpuscles, and thereby build up quickly and safely muscles and solid, healthy flesh. There is no tonic known to medical science for men and women equal to Make-Man Tablets for all nervous and blood diseases. the success of each.

Without wishing to appear boastful, I feel confident that if this method is resorted to, I shall be West Florida's candidate. If there are those who differ from me, there can be no better way of ascertaining the truth. The public will be superior to the personal ambition of any candidate. That will be, and I believe should be, ascertained and respected.

Yours respectfully,
L. J. REEVES.
